The string of time runs through the outcomes of the past. Our collective coils of mortality unspool themselves into the great tapestry of life. However, the wanton hands of the Fates can swiftly weave a new pattern altogether.

Throughout the centuries pandemics have shaped the world. The first and second Plague, Yellow Fever, and Spanish Flu, in turn gave us the Reformation, Renaissance, Enlightenment, and the Roaring Twenties. These show that a sudden change in the fabric of the world can spark great minds or awaken our inner animals.

We are nearing the end of this thread; where do we go from here? It's up to us to stitch our mutual futures together.
